

MEETING THE PROJECT MANAGEMENT CHALLENGE

2004

Biography

Jim Taylor, PMP

Senior Advisor - ESI International

Jim Taylor is a certified Project Management Professional (PMP) with 35 years of highly diversified experience in project management, marketing, and business development in both the public and private sectors. His principal experience is in the training industry, including aircrew training and design and development of flight simulator equipment, information technology, and engineering services. Mr. Taylor is the author of "A Survival Guide for Project Managers", "How to Cost and Price Competitive Bids", "The Project Management Workshop", and "Managing Information Technology Projects: Applying Project Management Strategies to Software, Hardware, and Integration Initiatives".

Mr. Taylor has a BS in Mathematics, BS and MS in Aerospace Engineering from Auburn University, a MS in Organizational Development from Marymount University in Virginia, and a DSc (all but dissertation) in Engineering from George Washington University.

NASA Project Management Conference